etc.: the information squad would establish and maintain information bureaus at the principal points of meeting, and such other points as would be of most service to the visitors. They would meet all trains, day and night, and would give out such other information as conditions demanded.

"The police squad would be located at each big meeting place and in such places or in the vicinity of hotels and intersecting streets, to guide visitors. Its members would also be placed wherever a crowd assembled, would search for lost baggage, pilot lost visitors to rooming houses, etc., and assist the police along lines of march.

"Information squad—A system of messenger service would be installed.

"It would be best for the Boy Scouts to do their first aid work in connection with the American Red Cross, provided they are to assist. And from our experience at Gettysburg I believe that this would be the most efficient way to handle the problem in Washington.

"The work having to do with the police system should be done in co-operation with the police department of the District of Columbia."
